

CITY & GUILDS NVQ LEVEL 5 DIPLOMA IN OCCUPATIONAL HEALTH AND SAFETY PRACTICE

Work based assessments means less time off work

The NVQ Level 5 Diploma is a high-level qualification, and to study this level of qualification in a classroom environment would mean attending weeks worth of study sessions. For many of those that can benefit the most from a Level 5 qualification, taking this much time off work is not an option.

The NVQ allows you to develop your education, knowledge and practical skills around your work and home life commitments, and aside from the agreed upon dates for feedback and help from your tutor, there are no set time commitments to adhere to.

You can get credit for your skills

The NVQ allows you to get credit for your skills, and for the some of the occupational work that you have already completed and recorded. As part of your assessment, you will submit evidence to show that you have achieved what is set out in the learning objectives for the units, and if this evidence shows that you are sufficiently competent in a subject area, you may be able to pass a unit with work you have already done.

Apply the knowledge to your work as you progress

The knowledge that you gain while working through your NVQ has been created in collaboration with experts in the occupational health and safety industry to be suitable for purpose, and so anything that you learn will provide a contribution to your practical skills as a health and safety practitioner.

You cannot fail an NVQ, your work can be improved and resubmitted

The NVQ assessment process does not require you to complete any exams.

Throughout the course of your NVQ you will be submitting work towards the criteria of each unit, if the work does not meet the requirements to pass the unit you can improve upon it and resubmit until you have shown that you understand the subject. This is a great way to gain a qualification by proving your understanding of how to practically apply what you have learned.

Equivalent qualification to the NDIP

The NVQ is an equivalent qualification to the NEBOSH Diploma in Occupational Health and Safety. They are both level 5 health and safety qualifications, but the NVQ doesn't require you to complete exams as part of the assessment criteria.
